

Powerful Card, Powerful Reporting

One of the most powerful features of a fleet card is the reporting that it offers. The information that these reports provide can be customized to help you identify trends directly associated with your business such as where and how often your vehicles are fueling, maintenance schedules and mileage per gallon

These reports can also help you eliminate unauthorized spending and monitor expenses by department or project cost, as well as save you valuable administrative time. These days, with tighter budgets and an intense focus on efficiency, the information you get from fleet fuel card tracking could help you save a considerable amount on your overall fuel management costs.

Customized Information For Your Business Needs

Reporting is available in a variety of formats for you to choose from including paper, e-mail or for download in Excel. Below is a sample of the types of reporting that the right fleet gas card can provide:

General

- Account activity reports: quickly and easily see the activity for each fleet card, vehicle or driver.
- Summary reports: A snapshot of all drivers and vehicles that will give you a brief but detailed view of account transactions, vehicle mileage and more.

Maintenance

- Maintenance & Vehicle Reports: learn how each vehicle in your fleet is performing and keep track of scheduled maintenance and repairs. Maintenance reports allow you to ensure that your vehicles are operating at their optimal level, and can help identify when they are not.

Exception

- Exception reports: allows you to identify purchases outside of your set policy. You choose the exceptions that you want reported and establish the limits for each. Exception reports provide complete transaction data by vehicle, including driver, location, date and time of transaction.

The right fleet fuel management program can bring substantial savings to your business. When searching for a fleet card provider, be sure to ask what type of reporting they provide so you can manage your fleet, your way. If you haven't used a fleet fuel card before, you will be amazed at how quickly you start seeing an improvement in your day-to-day operations.

It starts with the right card.
